Man dead after hunting accident

ACCIDENT A 60-year-old Calgary man is dead after a tragic hunting accident Monday morning.

A pair of hunters had been staying with relatives about 70 km north of Westlock, and were hunting deer in the thick brush.

Around 9:30 a.m., the men saw deer in a treed area off in the distance.

One of the men walked into the trees to search for the deer, and was shot by his 81-year-old hunting partner who stayed behind in the field.

When the man realized what happened, he ran to a neighbouring farm for help.

Alcohol is not believed to be a factor in the incident.

No charges have been laid at this point, but the investigation is ongoing. Westlock RCMP will be discussing the incident with Crown prosecutors to determine whether charges are appropriate.

The victim's family members are devastated, said Westlock RCMP Sgt. Bryan Clayton. At their request, the name of the victim is being withheld. METRO EDMONTON

U.S. President-elect Senator Barack Obama stands with his wife Michelle and their daughters Malia and Sasha as they face supporters at his election night rally after being declared the winner of the 2008 U.S. Presidential Campaign in Chicago, last night.

'Change has come'

Election USA

Democrat Barack Obama captured the White House yesterday after an extraordinary two-year campaign, defeating Republican John McCain to make history as the first black U.S. president.

Obama will be sworn in as the 44th U.S. president Jan. 20, 2009 and will face a crush of immediate challenges, from tackling an economic crisis to ending the war in Iraq and trying to overhaul the U.S. health care system.

The win by Obama, son of a black father from Kenya and white mother from Kansas, marked a milestone in U.S. history. It came 45 years after the height of the civil rights movement led by Martin Luther King.

"It's been a long time coming, but tonight, because of what we did on this day, at this defining moment, change has come to America," Obama, 47, told 125,000 ecstatic supporters gathered in Chicago's Grant Park to celebrate.

"The road ahead will be long. Our climb will be steep. We may not get there in one year or even one term, but America — I have never been more hopeful than I am tonight that we will get there," he said.

Prime Minister Harper issued a statement saying, "I look forward to meeting with the President-elect so that we can continue to strengthen the special bond that exists between Canada and the United States."

Europe trip comes first for Stelmach

JEFF CUMMINGS
jeff.cummings@metronews.ca

ECONOMY Alberta Premier Ed Stelmach says it is of "paramount importance" to skip out on next week's first ministers meeting on the impacts of the world financial crisis — and stick with his already planned European trade mission.

"I made a commitment, that's where I am going," said an angry Stelmach after being asked by reporters about the trip Premier Ed Stelmach media availability yesterday.

Prime Minister Stephen Harper called the meeting with provincial leaders for three hours next Monday to discuss a strategy on Canada's economy.

But Stelmach will begin a 10-day trip this Friday to sell oil from Alberta's oil sands to investors in Britain, Germany and the Netherlands.

Alberta Liberal Leader Kevin Taft says Stelmach is making a mistake when provincial leaders are looking to Alberta's economic leadership for support.

The premier says his European mission will be a chance to talk to investors over the inaccuracies about Alberta's oil sands, a key part of Canada's economy.

Ever wonder why we talk about what we talk about? Come to the Parkland '08 conference, and discuss art, culture, media and politics. The conference runs Nov. 14 from 7:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m. at the Myer Horowitz Theatre. METRO EDMONTON

Twitchell friends say allegations are false

victoria.handysides@metronews.ca

Friends of accused killer Mark Twitchell are insistent that the allegations against him are false, and that there's no way that a man in the prime of his life could be capable of a brutal murder.

Twitchell is a 29-year-old indie filmmaker from St. Albert, who was recently married, and has an infant daughter.

Police allege that the young man murdered 38-year-old Johnny Altlinger, acting out a scene from a freshly inked script he'd written for a film dubbed "House of Cards." The plot: a man is lured from an Internet dating site to a garage, tied to a chair, and chopped to pieces.

"Mark is a very non-violent person, with no temper to speak of, and an aversion to conflict, yelling, or physical violence," said friend and colleague Mike Young. "In all the long hours we've put in together, and the many years we've spent together, there has never been a hint, a glimpse, even the slightest possibility, that Mark has it in him to even throw a punch, let alone kill a human being."

Young's sentiments are echoed by scores of Twitchell's friends and acquaintances, all of whom are shocked at his arrest. A belief runs among the widespread group that he's been caught in a case of mistaken identity.

"He is at a great point in his life, one which someone would have to be an absolute idiot to screw up with an act like this," Young said.

"When I heard it, I didn't really believe it, and I still don't," said friend Galen Pendleton.

Local criminologist Bill Pitt feels the act may have been videotaped, and that its recovery would hold the key to a murder conviction.

Altlinger's body has not been found, but police believe there is enough forensic evidence for a conviction.

Twitchell makes his first court appearance today. None of the allegations have been proven in court.

"Come on, those owners aren't coming back. They are gone," said Hervey Foundation for Cats owner, Marjorie Hervey. "It's unbelievable what (owners) did to those poor animals, leaving them out there to freeze and starve to death. I know, though, that some of those people are practically homeless themselves."

Randolph said the society didn't rescue any of the animals because picking up stray cats isn't in its mandate.

Search effort for Koshman widens with help of dogs

LOST Search efforts are widening to find a man who wandered off in a south side neighbourhood on Oct. 11 and simply vanished.

An independent non-profit group, Canadian Search and Disaster Dogs Association (CASDDA), has offered to lend a hand in searching for the missing 21-year-old.

Dylan Koshman wandered away from his home on 104th Street and 33rd Avenue after an argument with his cousins. Dylan Koshman with his cousins.

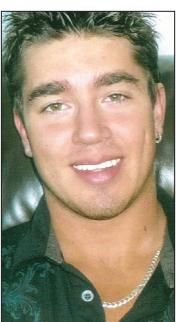

Searches in the river valley by police, volunteers, and family members have turned up no sign of the man.

"The problem is, especially given the state he was in when he left, it's quite possible that he got picked up by somebody or had an altercation with a different group," said Richard Lee, CASDDA rescuer.

His family is confident the strong, talented young man was not suicidal, and that he may have been the victim of foul play.

Search efforts are currently being coordinated between the group and the Koshman family.

"It is possible that he is alive, but with the cold weather, it really reduces the chances."

Dr. Louis Hugo Francescutti, a medical professor at the University of Alberta, says kids need to be harnessed anytime they are transported.

DEAL Nearly 100 foreign workers who have been shut out of their jobs for over a month filed back into a local plant yesterday.

Over the weekend, the United Food and Commercial Workers Union came to an agreement with Maple Leaf Poultry, but by a thin margin. Only 58 per cent of workers voted in favour of the new deal, which doesn't give them salary parity with competitor companies.

"People are here, and they're happy," said union representative Jack Westgeest, from outside the east end plant yesterday. "I don't think they're enamoured by the deal, but they're acceptant of the fact they were able to move Maple Leaf off their last position." Though a better starting wage is included in the new three-year contract, the maximum rate isn't as high as employees were asking.

Union officials and management will discuss options for more efficient and longer clean-up time within 60 days. VICTORIA HANDSIDES/ METRO EDMONTON

Economy solid anyway: Stelmach

The outcome of the U.S. election won't hinder Alberta's oil-rich economy, even through tough economic times, said Premier Ed Stelmach.

Stelmach says both leaders have talked about removing their reliance on oil from troubled countries in the Middle East and he believes America's next president will be looking to Alberta for its energy needs more than ever before.

Even after Barack Obama's campaign team vowed to end America's reliance on "dirty oil" sources, Stelmach says he still believes Alberta's oil-sands sector will thrive.

Puerto Rican governor, facing fraud charges, loses soundly

RESULT With election fraud charges hanging over his head, Puerto Rico Gov. Anibal Acevedo Vila was beaten soundly in his re-election bid yesterday.

The 46-year-old governor from the pro-commonwealth Popular Democratic Party, who was indicted this year on campaign fund-raising charges, lost the leadership of the U.S. Caribbean territory to Luis Fortuno of the pro-statehood New Progressive Party.

Fortuno opened up a comfortable 10-point lead in early returns and held it until Acevedo Vila conceded the race four hours after polls closed. A 10-point margin is a landslide in Puerto Rico, where the electorate is evenly split between people who favour the island's current commonwealth status and those who want full U.S. statehood.

"We always knew it was going to be an uphill struggle but we knew we had to do what was right for Puerto Rico," Acevedo Vila told his supporters.

Historic election stirs homeless to vote

VOTERS Frederick Williams, a Marine Corps veteran scraping by on unemployment benefits, describes his living situation as "not homeless but close to it" and says he never cared enough to vote — until yesterday.

At age 43, Williams shuffled into a Los Angeles homeless shelter carrying his worldly belongings in a small travel case and a knotted plastic bag and proudly cast the first ballot of his life with guidance from poll workers.

Williams said he voted for Barack Obama, whose message of hope and bid to become the first black president of the United States stirred him like no other politician.

"This is history in the making. I wanted to be part of that," said Williams, who lives in a transient hotel a few blocks from the polling station at the Los Angeles Mission.

Williams was one of hundreds of people — many first-time voters lacking permanent dwellings — who cast ballots this year on Skid Row, a 50-block downtown area believed to harbor the highest concentration of homeless in the United States.

Those voters represent a fraction of the estimated 12,000 people who live and sleep on the streets of that area. Many are mentally ill or suffer from substance abuse.

But Orlando Ward, spokesman for the nearby Midnight Mission, said the numbers turning out yesterday were unprecedented.

Obama led McCain in election spending

NEW YORK. We new this was going to be an expensive election when Federal Election Commission officials argued that for any candidate to be taken seriously in the 2008 election, he or she would have to have raised at least $100 million by the end of 2007.

Now, after candidates, particularly on the Democratic side, have continuously broken fundraising records, the combined amount raised and spent has broken the $1 billion mark. Here's a look at who got what and where it went.

Maybe it's time to pull plug on Tasers

TheWestView

Paul Sullivan

A guy in Calgary died Monday after being Tasered by police during a break-in.

A few days before that, a man in Edmonton died after police subdued him with a Taser while he was allegedly wreaking havoc at a pawn shop.

In Canada more than 20 people have died after being Tasered since use began in 1999; yet officials resist calls for a moratorium while we study this, uh, shocking trend. The latest assurance was issued by Alberta's solicitor general Fred Lindsay after the Edmonton death ... two days before the Calgary death.

"I believe the Taser is a tool that's been used very effectively and in a lot of cases has prevented death," said Lindsay. Is it just me, or do his words ring hollow, bookended by Taser-related fatalities three days apart?

And lest we forget, it was just over a year ago when the RCMP set off a Taser-related international incident. Polish traveller Robert Dziekanski, freaking out after spending 10 hours trapped in the Vancouver airport trying to find his mother was Tasered after he began throwing the furniture around. He died too. The Polish government summoned the Canadian ambassador looking for answers. Like the rest of us, Poland is still waiting.

"If Alberta's solicitor general thinks Tasers are safe, he should step up and take a shot or two in order to prove his thesis."

Amnesty International recommends a time out while we study these things further. By its count, more than 290 people have died in North America after being Tasered. And it's not even considered a weapon in the USA; you can Taser people who are annoying. By that criterion, I'd deploy mine 50-100 times a day.

While Tasers are a restricted weapon in Canada, police argue that they have saved 4,000 lives since they began using them in 1999. And as targets of the Taser are usually dangerous individuals in the middle of a psychotic episode or drug-induced frenzy, they're not so easy to subdue — yet they obviously have to be subdued. Public safety depends on it ... I think.

Okay, but watch the video of the Dziekanski incident. You're left with the uneasy feeling that the four officers surrounding the agitated man really didn't need to Taser him repeatedly — as many as four times, according to witnesses. An alternative might have been to find a Polish-speaking translator to try and calm the man down. There remains a lingering suspicion that the officers applied the "annoying" criterion, and while the rules of engagement are still not clear, "annoying" just isn't good enough.

I'll leave you with this electrifying proposal: If Alberta's solicitor general thinks Tasers are safe, he should step up and take a shot or two in order to prove his thesis. Failing that, he should show some leadership and pull the plug before someone else dies while being "subdued."

Word on the street: What do you think of Barack Obama as president?

Burke MacLean

age 32, Edmonton

A: Yes, in some aspects Obama will make a good leader. He will change the party, and he's younger and has new and different ideas.

Danielle Hrdlicka

age 21, Edmonton

A: He will get the States in more debt than what it currently is in now.

Jamie Ho

age 27, Edmonton

A: He'll change things and I think he will make things better, but you never know.

Mark Coleman

age 38, Toronto

A: Obama would make a better president. In light of what's going on in Afghanistan and Iraq, I think Barack is more in line with current society's standards and changes.

Michelle Lowe

age 34, Toronto

A: Obama's policies just seem more socially acceptable. I don't like McCain. He would be too conservative.

Ryan Steeles

age 22, Ottawa

A: It's going to be hard to live up to the hype. Even though he's a great candidate and a great person. I don't think that he's going to live up to the expectations.

Sherilyn Sutton

age 26, Calgary

A: I think it's awesome because the republicans have spent the last eight years destroying America.

Maryam Mumayiz

age 19, Edmonton

A: I absolutely love Barack Obama as president. I just don't believe in anything McCain.

Shahriar Ahmad

age 26, Vancouver

A: Considering the options, I'm very, very pleased. U.S. foreign policy is a very difficult thing to reverse.

Fatima Casadei

age 27, Vancouver

A: I think it's about time! I think it's time for a change and it needs to happen and I hope that it does.

TSX up with commodity prices

MARKETS The Toronto Stock Exchange's main index climbed 4 per cent yesterday to 10,116.58, to its highest close in two weeks as resource issues surged with rising commodity prices, and on relief that the uncertainty of the U.S. presidential election would be over.

Heavily weighted stocks that helped to push the market higher included Canadian Natural Resources, up 9 per cent at $62.70, and Barrick Gold, which got an 10.1 per cent boost to close at $28.97.

Those rises were in line with the broader strength in the key energy and materials sectors, which led the market higher, posting rises of 5.9 per cent and 10.2 per cent, respectively.

Wireless players prepare for fight

The country's Big Three wireless providers — Rogers, Bell and Telus — are moving in the direction of cheaper cellphone plans and more billing transparency as the prospect of more wireless competition in markets across Canada mounts.

With start-ups making noise about chasing the low-end of the market with flat-rate plans and easier-to-understand monthly bills, Rogers' youth-oriented Fido brand became the latest wireless provider to re-tool its approach by revealing a brand makeover yesterday that promises "high-value low-price plans."

The move follows rival Telus Corp.'s creation of discount brand Koodo.

Sylvain Roy, Fido's senior vice president and general manager, said the decision to "reposition" the dog-themed brand from one that focused on attracting young urban professionals to one that targets price conscious first-time buyers was in recognition of a shifting wireless landscape.

In particular, Roy said Fido is now aiming to attract the roughly 35 per cent of Canadians that do not yet own a cellphone, a relatively large market that several prospective new players have also identified as ripe for the picking.

Bell Canada unveiled a new plan this week that allows subscribers to "rollover" their unused minutes every month, touting it as the first in Canada. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Roethlisberger undergoes MRI

NFL Pittsburgh Steelers quarterback Ben Roethlisberger underwent an MRI exam yesterday on his injured right shoulder. Roethlisberger injured the shoulder on a quarterback sneak near the end of the second quarter of Pittsburgh's 23-6 victory in Washington on Monday night. Roethlisberger did not play the rest of the game. The Steelers are awaiting results of the MRI to determine if he can play Pittsburgh's next game against the Colts.

Quinn will start against the Broncos Thursday night.

Carpenter has surgery on elbow

MLB St. Louis Cardinals pitcher Chris Carpenter underwent surgery yesterday on his right elbow.

The procedure included decompression and transposition of the ulnar nerve, and was performed by Cardinals team physician Dr. George Paletta. St. Louis first baseman Albert Pujols had the same operation done on Oct. 13. The surgery is not expected to interfere with the physical rehabilitation of his ailing shoulder, which forced an end to his 2008 season. Carpenter was forced to stop pitching in September after just four appearances because of persistent shoulder weakness. He had strained his right triceps in early August, which sent Carpenter to the disabled list.

'Freak accident' shelves Brodeur

Bicep injury will delay march to two NHL records

Martin Brodeur extended his reach on a slapshot against the Atlanta Thrashers on Saturday, heard a "pop" in his left elbow and felt a brief, sharp stabbing pain. Within a minute, he couldn't lift his arm. He knew that wasn't good.

Now one of the NHL's premier goaltenders now faces surgery to repair the distal bicep in his left elbow, and it will be at least eight weeks before he can begin rehabilitation.

He won't be back in the NHL for three or four months.

"It's shocking," Brodeur said in a conference call yesterday. "You expect my knee's going to go, or my groin, or my stomach, or something I use a goalie. I didn't think a bicep could have been a big factor in an injury.

"That's why I think it's such a freak accident."

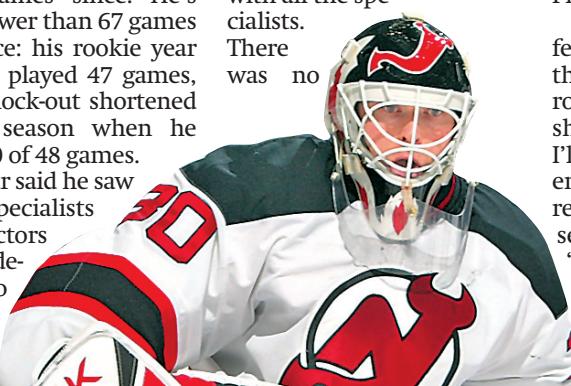

It's the first major surgery of the 36-year-old's career. Brodeur has been nothing shy of incredibly durable since entering the league full time in the 1993-94 season, playing a remarkable 87 per cent of New Jersey Devils games since. He's played fewer than 67 games only twice: his rookie year when he played 47 games, and the lock-out shortened 1994-95 season when he played 40 of 48 games.

Brodeur said he saw many specialists and doctors before deciding to proceed with surgery,

His injury could be the "pop" heard round the Eastern Conference, where the New Jersey Devils could fall to the pack of also-rans. With Brodeur, a playoff spot is generally a given: the Devils have missed the playoffs only once (1996) in Brodeur's tenure.

Buono has to believe in road-field advantage

YorkReport

Marty York

marty.york@metronews.ca

I feel like a fool.

I mean, during all my years of covering sports, I've steadfastly believed that a home team has an advantage — a significant advantage, in fact — for playoff games, especially in the CFL. Well, "only fools think" this way, according to Wally Buono.

Buono, who will surpass Don Matthews as the most victorious head coach in CFL history with five more triumphs, is adamant that home-field edges simply don't exist. Buono's B.C. Lions are 3.5-point underdogs for Saturday's Western Division semi-final — chiefly because the game is in Saskatchewan — but the coach considers the odds-makers foolish, too.

Oh, and Saskatchewan general manager Eric Tillman also is a fool in Buono's eyes. "Consider me the ultimate fool," Tillman acknowledged sarcastically, adding Saskatchewan fans "matter big-time to our franchise ... and you can bet everything you own they're going to matter on Saturday."

• One of the Roughriders'

key defensive players wears an insulin pump during games. Defensive lineman

John Chick has diabetes.

"People are shocked at first because they don't think a person can play with that," Chick said.

"For me, it's a matter of overcoming something that people have struggled with, especially in the past. I'm glad to show that you can be as active as you want. You just have to take care and sacrifice some time to take control of it."

site, johnchick97.com where he answers questions regularly.

• The CFL has fined the Winnipeg Blue Bombers' Kai Ellis $1,000 for saying he wished he could put Montreal Alouettes' GM Jim Popp "in a coma." Ellis, who was cut by Popp earlier this season, is appealing ... After a woebegone season in which his team failed to qualify for the playoffs, Michael (Pinball) Clemons is about to be removed as the Toronto Argonauts' president and will remain with the organization only if he agrees to return as head coach ... Noel Prefontaine, 34, is telling friends he probably won't return as the Edmonton Eskimos' punter next season.

He'll test the free-agent market and may even retire ... He used to be known as Kamau Incompleterson for obvious reasons, but he was terrific this season for the Eskimos and look for Kamau Peterson to be chosen the CFL's premier Canadian for 2008 ... And whatever happened to the CFL returning to Ottawa? The league has given Ottawa until next March to provide concrete proof that it can have a viable franchise in 2010 but, unless things change, don't expect it to happen. The idea simply has too many opponents in Ottawa, especially in political circles.

After five days of intense testing, the 2009 "Best New" AJAC award winners in 14 different vehicle categories were announced, by the Automobile Journalists Association of Canada (AJAC).

The purpose of the AJAC awards is to provide consumers with a valuable resource that comprises comparative information on vehicles that are new to the market.

Are consumers listening? It would appear so.

Maritz Research, on behalf of AJAC and in association with General Motors of Canada Ltd., conducted a survey of 2008 Buick Enclave purchasers to test their recognition of AJAC, the AJAC awards and the Buick Enclave as the winner of the Best New SUV Over $60,000 award for 2008.

Seventy four per cent of the 2008 Buick Enclave buyers who were aware of the AJAC Awards program when they purchased their vehicles knew that the Enclave was voted Best New SUV Over $60,000, a record diesel into Canada.

Instead of being offered in a SUV or luxury car, as you might expect, they are looking at the SX4 compact hatchback.

The SX4 sedan and hatchback are already hot sellers here for Suzuki, but the addition of a diesel could not come at a better time. Looking at the cost of fuel, they are, on average, 30 per cent more fuel efficient than gasoline.

The diesel in the SX4 already meets Europe's tough emissions laws that see it emitting 139 grams of CO<sub>2</sub> per kilogram which is very close to the "magic" 99-g/km mark.

With low sulphur diesel fuel now available in Canada, the car would probably qualify as a "clean diesel" in Canada.

Suzuki brought in a pair of the cars for evaluation and surprised Canadian auto journalists at the launch of the 2009 Grand Vitara by making them available for test drives.

Suzuki builds the car in Hungary for the European market. It has a turbocharged, common rail direct injection 1.6-litre, four-valve, four-cylinder engine producing 88.5 hp and a solid 158.6

The European-built Suzuki SX4 diesel looks identical to the Canadian specification SX4 hatchback except for the small "DDiS" badge on the front fenders.

lb/ft of torque that is fully available at just 1,750 rpm. There is also a 1.9-litre turbo diesel available.

Fuel consumption for the 1.6-litre is listed at 6.4/4.6/5.3L/100 km city/highway/combined.

While driving on a combination of highway and back roads near Huntsville, Ont., the handy instant fuel readout at the top of the centre stack was showing 5.4L/100 km.

Turn the car on and it fires up immediately and settles into a diesel engine rattle that anyone who has been to Europe will be familiar with. As you accelerate, the rattle changes tone to a louder, more urgent clatter as the revs rise.

It's not fast, but it's not pokey either with a 0-100 km/h time of 12.2 seconds. In fact, the only thing holding it back is the longer time it takes to build revs in a diesel but this is helped a lot by the turbo. As it is, the top speed is 175 km/h which is fast in anyone's books.

You don't have to bury the pedal anymore on today's diesels to prod them up to speed.

The best of the Bond locations

Sir Roger Moore dishes on his favourite 007 filming sites

EMMA E. FORREST
Metro World News

James Bond movies are always set in exotic locations, from Jamaica through to outer space. To celebrate the release of the new 007 film, Quantum of Solace, we caught up with veteran Bond, Sir Roger Moore, to find out more about the destinations where he filmed his exciting adventures and rakish love scenes.

Q Which Bond movie had the best range of locations through the shooting?

A The Spy Who Loved Me — I loved Corsica, and of course the Bahamas!

Q Which is your single favourite Bond location, and why?

A It has to be Corsica. It's such a beautiful island with terrific hotels and the most gorgeous sea food. In a word, it's idyllic.

Q Did you ever have time out to explore

The port of Bonifacio on Corsica, which was Sir Roger Moore's favourite Bond filming location — though he also liked the Bahamas.

A Not really. We were usually on pretty tight schedules and would arrive one afternoon, check in to our hotel and start shooting the next morning. I only really got to see the areas we were filming in, as there was no such thing as a day off for Jimmy Bond.

Q Which location had the best food?

A Corsica.

Q Which location had the best nightlife?

A Well, all I ever did was fall into bed after a quick drink with the stunt boys. I never got to see any nightlife as I usually had a 5 a.m. start.

Q Did you ever return to have a holiday in one of the Bond locations?

A I've been back to many of the countries, though usually with UNICEF. I tend to spend my holidays at home as I travel so much.

Q Do you have a favourite hotel?

A Oh goodness, I've stayed in many wonderful hotels. It would be difficult to single any one out, though whenever I can I do stay at the Sheratons as they have a terrific standard of excellence throughout the world — wonderful rooms, comfy beds, room service that knows how to boil a three-minute egg and of course they have Checkout For Children where every guest donates £1 per stay to UNICEF. A great fundraiser!

Q What is your all-time favourite holiday destination?

A I have to say home, in Monaco. To relax with my family, and maybe take a boat around the coast to Villefranche for lunch is as good as it gets.

Q What is your idea of a dream holiday?

A I don't have one. I've travelled so much that all I long for now is home. I've lost count of the number of planes I've been on in my lifetime, certainly this year alone it must be 50 or more. Flying used to be fun, but now I can't help but feel some of that appeal has been lost. I much prefer the train if it's possible.

Down on the farm — in the Central American jungle

Deep in the jungles of Central America, where jaguars, crocodiles and Howler monkeys are king, visitors may spot something out of the ordinary. Women in bonnets, suited up in wooly winter frocks; men dressed in overalls and straw Cowboy hats; children riding stone-faced in horse-drawn buggies.

A Mennonite settlement in the heart of the jungles of Belize may seem like a hallucination brought on by the intense humidity and hypnotizing buzz of cicadas. But this is no illusion. Amidst Mayan ruins overgrown by moss, there are some 5000 Mennonites living in this, small central American country, bordering Mexico and Guatemala.

Mennonites, I learned, are a Protestant religious sect, first formed in the Netherlands in the 16th century.

While there are 1 million worldwide, many have settled throughout Belize, among the towns of Orange Walk, Shipyard and Indian Creek. Belize's government welcomed them and praised their farming expertise, which accounts for much of the country's produce. They live a simple, ultra-conservative life in closed, farming communities.

to a Mennonite community.

From the air-conditioned comfort of the 4 X 4 Land Rover, I travelled a few kilometres to Indian Creek, home to some 1,400 Mennonites. From the back of the car, I watched the landscape change from lush jungle of tangled vines, to vast, (clear-cut) pastoral farmlands.

show me around.

Wearing blue overalls, a crisp marine blue shirt, droplets of sweat gathering on his upper lip, Abe shook my hand with a firm paw. Though many residents shy away from outsiders, Abe is keen to show people around.

He explained that Mennonites here refuse to use modern technology. No television, no cellphones, no electricity, no cars. No music or dancing allowed. Abe told me that the reasoning behind it is to create a strong family unit, without the distractions or temptations of modernity.

A horse and buggy packed with cloaked women sped along the unpaved road. Air thick with moisture, my back dripping with sweat, I couldn't imagine what it must be like to wear such heavy layers of petticoats and dresses everyday.

Appeal of a super spy

Men from all walks of life identify with James Bond character

RICK MCGINNIS
Metro Canada

I was shooting a wedding when I saw him — the 10-year-old nephew of the bride, strutting and preening in his first rented tuxedo. He was going through a James Bond phase, his father and uncles explained, both amused and a little proud, no doubt remembering the first time they had let themselves become obsessed with Ian Fleming's secret agent.

For several weeks now, I've been researching a Becoming James Bond series for Metro, and without exception, every man I've spoken to along the way, from luxury car salesmen to caviar importers to haberdashers to wine and spirits experts, has proved to be a James Bond expert in their own right, able to quote lines from the books and scenes from the movies with obvious familiarity.

Few men are as willing to take their Bond obsession as far as Michael Newitt, a 41-year-old who was arrested in England last month for posing as a secret agent to keep ahead of creditors. According to a story in the U.K.'s Guardian newspaper, Newitt had fooled several local police officers and even his own wife with his story of being "a special operations commander with MI5, the Foreign Office and counter-terrorism units," and would sleep with a replica gun beside his bed and suddenly disappear on "missions."

He'd even awarded himself the rank of Commander, and had obtained impressive fake I.D. that gave him the title CMG — "a high-ranking award fictitiously presented to James Bond in the story From Russia with Love."

The magic of Bond is that his appeal is multi-fold, and changes to suit every stage of a man's life.

For the pre-teen boy, Bond is a more plausible superhero for a time when men in capes and tights are starting to seem a bit ludicrous, even undignified. For the teenager, he's enviably adult without being dull, suggesting a possibility of life without tedious routine.

For the man in his twenties, all too aware of how routine and responsibility are closing in on him,

Bond is a rebel who gets applauded for breaking the rules, enjoying the perquisites of adulthood — risk, reward, luxury and apparently guiltless sex — without obligations to prudence or fidelity.

For men in their 30s and 40s, he's the consummate professional, esteemed and disciplined, with an apparently perpetual free pass exempting him from midlife crisis. Finally, for older men, Bond is a reminder of a time when they could draw from both youth and experience, a totem of virility that gets renewed every few years onscreen by a new man clearly in his prime.

Women would probably do well to watch a few Bond films when getting to know a man, if only to give them something to talk about.

And while most men aren't as delusional as "Commander" Newitt, they'd like to imagine that they are, somewhere, half as capable and suave as Bond. If women are as nurturing as we presume, they'll let us cling to this lonely, forlorn hope.

Bernie Mac brings warmth to Madagascar sequel

for Metro Canada

When moviegoers check out the animated sequel Madagascar: Escape 2 Africa, they will not only be reuniting with the beloved quartet of lost zoo animals, they will meet Alex the lion's long lost father and be treated to a special vocal performance by one of comedy's most gifted craftsmen.

"It was very difficult casting the character of Alex's father because we knew that the character would be judgmental and have high expectations and we didn't want to do the Great Santini," explained co-director Tom McGrath during a recent interview in Los Angeles. "We needed someone who would bring the warmth to it."

McGrath and company looked no farther than Bernie Mac — the acclaimed comic-actor who sadly passed away from pneumonia in August at age 50. This Friday, the late actor will be honoured with two theatrical releases — the other being Soul Men with Samuel L. Jackson.

"The greatest part of that loss is that you had a person that was just honest and he walked the walk and talked the talk," says Madagascar co-star Cedric the Entertainer, who describes Mac as his "comic mentor."

"He was funny and great at doing it so that's going to be the biggest loss right there."

"I knew Bernie Mac twenty years," adds Chris

Bernie Mac

Rock, who met his Madagascar co-star struggling as a young comedian. Having begun his career telling jokes for change in the Chicago subway, Mac eventually hosted his own respected weekly comedy show at the Regal Theatre.

"He was always the ambassador of Chicago, like the best guy. It's sad that he's not here (doing interviews) today; it's just sad because he'd be the funniest guy here," said Rock.

Indeed, Mac is one of the most hilarious aspects of the new Madagascar comedy, but he also provides a surprisingly touching vocal performance, one that perhaps exemplifies the man's true spirit of life.

Sherri Shepherd, who voices Mac's lioness wife in the movie, might best sum up Mac's personal legacy. She recalls a wildly funny man with a consideration beyond expectation. Having previously worked with him, she remembers Mac voluntarily spending an hour entertaining bored extras at 3 a.m. on the set of his 2005 film Guess Who.

"That is the Bernie Mac that I remember and I was so honoured to have worked with him," she said.

From restaurant to rock

GRAHAM ROCKINGHAM
for Metro Canada

Ever had a job you just hated? Where you were always looking over your shoulder, wondering if the boss was watching. Where everything focused around punching out, grabbing your cheque and cutting loose?

For Max Kerman, lead vocalist of the Arkells, that job was waiting tables at an Italian restaurant on the outskirts of Hamilton, Ont.

If things go right for this new indie band from the Steel City, you may be hearing a lot about Kerman's job experiences on the radio. The first single off the Arkells' debut CD, Jackson Square, is called Oh, the Boss Is Coming, and it's about Kerman's brief career as a waiter.

"The lyrics don't really need any more explaining," Kerman said during a recent break in the band's national tour with Matt Mays & El Torpedo. "The words are pretty straight-

Jackson Square, the Arkells' new album, is now in stores.

It's that kind of open honesty that makes the songs of the Arkells so accessible. They play gritty guitar rock high on intensity and low on pretension.

None of the five members of the Arkells are from Hamilton originally. They met there, however, while attending McMaster University and began performing on the vibrant Hamilton club scene as Charlemagne. The name was changed to the Arkells when they realized how many other bands around the world also called themselves Charlemagne.

The band members all share a love for the old Motown sound and felt the name, Arkells, referenced those old girl bands like the Supremes and the Shirelles. Arkell was also the name of the west Hamilton street on which Kerman shared a house with bandmate and fellow guitarist Mike Deangelis during their time at Mac.

The band was picked up by Dine Alone Records, the hugely successful indie label that pushed Alexisonfire and City and Colour to platinum heights (Arkells keyboardist Dan Griffin also plays sideman to City and Colour's Dallas Green). An EP was released earlier this year, and Jackson Square was officially released last week across the country.

Over the past four years, the Arkells have established deep roots in the city. Jackson Square is named after a mall in downtown Hamilton that has seen better days.

"I think it's a pretty inspiring place," says Kerman, who grew up in downtown Toronto. "Jackson Square gets ragged on a lot but it's a really cool place. Everyone in the band has a story about Jackson Square."

Besides Oh, the Boss Is Coming, Jackson Square is loaded with pop-rockers like John Lennon, No Champagne Socialist, Ballad of Hugo Chavez and Abigail.

24 returns for Season 7 in January

TV Fox will premiere the first new regular episode of 24 in nearly two years on Jan. 11, the network said.

The seventh season of the real-time thriller will kick off with a two-hour episode, followed by another two-hour segment the next night. Fox used a similar roll-out plan for 2007's sixth season premiere in January 2007.

Day Seven opens with the Counter Terrorism Unit dismantled and federal agent Jack Bauer (Kiefer Sutherland) on trial. Bauer's day takes an unexpected turn when former colleague Tony Almeida (Carlos Bernard) returns after being presumed dead.

A two-hour prequel movie 24: Redemption will give viewers a head start on the season when it airs on Nov. 23. The movie will feature Jon Voight, making his first series role in 40 years as Bauer's latest über-nemesis.

Winslet shoots down airbrushing rumour

IMAGE Actress Kate Winslet has denied she resorted to airbrushing to sweep away excess pounds for a sexy new photoshoot, imdb.com reports.

Winslet posed for a Catherine Deneuve-inspired shoot for Vanity Fair magazine on a couch, wearing nothing but stockings, high heels and a fur throw.

Winslet's figure has drawn accusations that the pictures were digitally altered to remove her famous curves. But a spokesman for the star is adamant that the photos are genuine, attributing

Winslet's new look to her healthy regime.

"There's been absolutely no airbrushing at all. All she has had is the standard retouching they do on any photoshoot, adjusting skin tone and so on. I know she is thrilled with the photos. She's in very good shape at the moment," the representative tells British newspaper the Independent.

Winslet slammed editors at British GQ magazine in 2003 for airbrushing her figure, accusing them of making her look like she was "six feet tall and a size 2."

Carrie soothes Simpson's fears

RELATIONSHIPS Carrie Underwood has a message for fellow singer Jessica Simpson: She and ex Tony Romo have not spoken in months, People.com reports.

"I haven't talked to him since, like, May," Underwood, 25, tells Elle in its December issue.

"It was just something that was said in passing," the country singer says, referring to an interview in which she said Romo still called her. "I would never mean to say anything to hurt anybody or to stir up anything because I'm just not about drama — at all."

As for reports that Simpson was upset by the claims, Underwood says, "I might be mad too if somebody said my boyfriend was calling some other girl. So I can definitely see where (she) would be coming from."

Asked about her current dating life, Underwood emphatically shot down rumours that she dated Olympian Michael Phelps.

Joe's take on celebrities

here's good news if your doctor has told you to get more eyeball exercise. That vast repository of lies and Botox, Nicole Kidman, continues to challenge Angelina Jolie as the celebrity most likely to say things that make them roll. In fact, there is a rumour in Hollywood that every time someone tells a lie, Nicole Kidman gets a royalty.

Kidman says she was expecting childbirth to be a 40-hour ordeal, or roughly half the length of what The Golden Compass felt like to watch, but since she had her hubby, the ironically named country singer Keith Urban, as her 'rock,' and since he has a magical ability to endow her with strength using only his eyes, it was nothing. Given that Kidman was once married to Tom Cruise, I don't question her ability to gauge pain, and looking at pictures of her forehead, I think she is an excellent judge of rocks, but where this story falls down for me is the idea that she would even consider enduring pain greater than that entailed in an eyebrow tweeze, unless there was an Oscar nomination in it for her.

The truth is probably that the child was born by C-section while Nicole was under full anesthetic, lying on a bed of liquid honey.

Donovan a second chance.
